OLD LIGHT HOUSE.
1853
Duluth, Minn.

Built by the United States Government at the South end of Minnesota Point. Long since been unused, but still owned by the Government.

Only about two-thirds of the tower still standing. The total destruction was prevented by the U. S. Dept. of the Interior in charge of Land Surveys. The tower is at a point of departure for all Government land surveys in this region.

Adjoining it on the left was a well built brick building for the light-house keeper, which has been torn down.

The first keeper was R. H. Barrett, who also was a clerk for George R. Stuntz at the trading post near the lighthouse.
